

MAKING A CONVENIENCE OF THE AMERICAN FLAG

Naturalized Citizens Who Feel No Obligation.

CITIZENSHIP A MERE SHIELD

Evade All Duties Both to Their Home
Government and That of the Country in Which They Reside.

The issuance of passports to naturalized citizens who continually reside abroad, have no interests in the United States, and use their American citizenship as a means of commercial advantage and protection forms the basis of interesting correspondence on the part of Minister Sampson, the United States representative in Ecuador. His letter on the subject is contained in the volume of foreign relations issued by the State Department. Among other things Mr. Sampson says:

"One of the most difficult experiences a representative of the United States has, is to determine what are the rights of certain claimants to American citizenship. It is a well known fact that there are many instances of persons claiming citizenship of the United States, both native and naturalized, who have been living abroad for many years, all the time claiming the protection of the United States, but discharging none of the duties of citizenship and, in many instances, of no honor to the nation, while all their scheming is to avoid all obligation to, and claim all exemptions possible from duties to the country in which they reside.

Citing a Flagrant Instance.

"I know one case in which a naturalized subject has resided for over forty years in the land of his nativity, without even visiting the United States and cannot speak a word of English.

"Such persons make it a religious duty to sign the register of American citizens in the United States legation or consulate each succeeding two years and profess great admiration for the 'Stars and Stripes,' and sigh for the day to come speedily when they can once more be 'at home in the best country in the world,' always saying, 'I hope in two or three years more.' Such persons are engaged in merchandising. You may enter and inspect their large stock of goods and not find a dollar's worth that has been purchased in the United States. In many instances they have amassed fortunes, but not one dollar of it increases the wealth of the United States; and yet it seeks the shelter and protection of the same. In prominent letters over the front door are seen the words 'American property.'

"Thus in every way possible and by repeated assertion they claim American citizenship, and if an official representative of the United States dare question it, the overzealous citizen becomes indignant.

Citizens in Good Faith.

"True, there are cases of those who reside abroad for many years who are engaged in some business or enterprise that will advance the interests of American commerce or manufactures, and who fully intend to return to the United States as soon as a certain result has been accomplished. Such persons are entitled to proper recognition. One not on the ground may be ready to say it is an easy matter to determine between those two classes.

Mr. Sampson urges that more definite rules be laid down so that uniformity of recognition of citizenship rights in all countries may be the same. He then continues:

Sudden Love of Country.

"A citizen of Porto Rico, for example (a true case) in Ecuador holding a regularly issued Spanish passport when Porto Rico became a part of the United States. He at once professed great admiration for the United States and declared he would henceforth be a citizen of the United States. Next he applied for registration as such and asked for a passport.

Mr. Sampson asks for instructions in such cases and suggests that the matter be called to the attention of Congress.

STINGING REBUKE FOR SOCIETY WINE AGENT

NEWPORT, April 14.—One incident of the preliminary arrangements for the Vanderbilt-Nelson wedding is causing a great flutter among the smart set here, and will doubtless create a greater stir among the members of the Newport colony now in New York, when they hear of it.

A prominent young society man who before his marriage was freely consulted about details of various functions and permitted, by way of compensation, to order the particular brand of wine, from the sale of which he obtained his principal income, sought indirectly to advise Mrs. Nelson, mother of the bride-to-be, regarding the purchase of champagne for the wedding feast. Mrs. Nelson listened to the proposition with much surprise and then remarked dryly to the messenger:

"Thank Mr. Blank for me and say that my butler arranges those matters for me, and that he had better see him."

GASOLINE INHALING

PREVALENT AMONG BOYS

Climb Lampposts and Dip Handkerchiefs in Cups.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—Physicians who have noted the prevalence of intoxication among boys caused by the inhaling of gasoline fumes unite in demanding an autopsy of the body of Thomas Copeland, who was killed by an explosion of gas in a tank car at Point Breeze Saturday.

They declare that a post-mortem examination of the body of the boy, who, it is said, was addicted to the habit of inhaling gasoline, will be of the greatest value in indicating the treatment of this form of intoxication and in showing the extent to which the organs are affected.

"There are two big gangs of gasoline inhalers downtown," said Mark Murtagh, the boy who was injured with McDevitt when Copeland was killed.

"How do they get the stuff? Ah, that's easy. Most of the time they climb up the lamppost, open the top of the gasoline cup and dip into it with their handkerchiefs or a cloth of any kind. Sometimes a fellow takes a sponge. Then they slide down, sit on the curb and hold it to their faces.

"Other times they get the jug in the gasoline tanks, like Copeland was doing when he was blown up. Then again they all put in for a quart of gasoline. They buy it at some paint shop, take it to some shack where they have bunks, and all get drunk together."

Boston, Mass., custom tailors have decided to grant their employees a nine-hour day and weekly payments, but have refused to recognize the union.

VIRGINIA NOTES.

RICHMOND.

Interest in legislative circles centers in the course to be followed by the senate today in dealing with the Campbell case. The joint resolution of the house removing Judge Campbell from the bench comes up for concurrence and there is certain to be a much more extended fight over it than there was in the lower house. The general impression is that the senate will concur in the removal of Judge Campbell. Senator McIlwaine is expected to lead the fight against the adoption of the resolution on the ground that the proceedings are irregular.

Mrs. Loula Wright, of Manchester, and her three little children came near losing their lives in a fire that nearly destroyed the dwelling Sunday morning. Mrs. Wright, with a baby in her arms and holding a five-year-old son, fell down the steps, fainted and had to be taken out by the firemen.

The Rev. Carey E. Morgan, for several years pastor of the Seventh Street Christian Church, has resigned to accept the pastorate of the Christian Church at Paris, Ky., which is one of the wealthiest churches of this denomination in the South.

THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

The body of Henry Russell, who disappeared from the shipyard at Newport News ten days ago, was found in the river yesterday. A piece of angle iron was tied to the feet. A coroner's jury decided that he had committed suicide. Russell was seen to row out into the river, and later on an empty boat was picked up by a Chesapeake and Ohio tug. The conclusion is that he tied the iron to his legs and jumped overboard.

In the hustings court at Roanoke yesterday, after a number of witnesses had been examined in the interest of Mrs. Ella Hartwell, who is seeking to obtain the custody of her four-year-old boy, the counsel for both sides withdrew and agreed upon a compromise by which the mother is to have the custody of the child for two years, with the understanding that the father, Dr. James H. Hartwell, is to see his son at convenient times in that period.

It became known yesterday that it is the intention of the Norfolk and Western to erect an additional roundhouse in the West End, where the company is now constructing about fifteen miles of new sidetracks. When completed this will make the Roanoke yard one of the largest in the South. All improvements are expected to be completed by early fall.

The boiler-makers along the line of the Norfolk and Western Railway are asking the company for a 10 per cent increase in wages. This is said to be because concessions were granted the boiler-makers of Bluefield on Friday. The boiler-makers of Roanoke were granted an increase two years ago.

DARING HIGHWAYMAN

ROBS A GIRL CASHIER

Attacks Her in Busy New York Street and Is Caught.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Before a crowd of two hundred persons a daring highwayman yesterday at noon attacked Barbara Trauman and robbed her of a package containing $1,316.17.

Miss Trauman is cashier for Andrew Michael, a pork packer, at 212 First Street. It is her daily custom to take the day's cash receipts to the Germania Bank, at Spring Street and the Bowery.

As she was turning into Houston Street from First Avenue yesterday a man seized her and threw her to the ground. He picked up the package containing the money and started to run, but was attracted by Miss Trauman's screams, were quickly in pursuit. They caught the thief and gave him into the custody of Policeman Jones, of the Fifth Street station. He gave the name of Frank Kelly, and said he suspected that the package contained money.

"It was worth going away for" was his only comment. He will be tried today.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman of Denison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCall's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, at which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work, as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Henry Evans, wholesale and retail, and all druggists.

AMERICAN CONSULS MINISTERS OF MERCY

Herbert M. Bowen Tells of the Many Appeals That Come to Them.

"Men who have never had experience in the foreign service cannot appreciate what a great variety of duties falls to American consuls," remarked Herbert M. Bowen, the United States minister to Venezuela, who is in Washington representing Venezuela in the settlement of claims held against that country by other powers. "The American policeman is supposed to hear more troubles than anybody on earth, but he does not have half as many woes poured into his ears as reach most American consuls.

"The duties of consuls are especially varied if they happen to be in cities where there are well out of the beaten path of travel. In such places there are few other Americans to hear the misfortunes of their fellow-countrymen, and all come to the consul. The consul, in a remote spot, hears the troubles which are intrusted to lawyers, doctors, and ministers in a land where they are available. People must make their secrets known to somebody, and when a consul is the only man available he must listen patiently to the life story of all American citizens who imagine they have grievances of some sort.

"American consuls the world over spend much of their salaries in assisting unfortunate citizens of the United States. The Government makes no appropriations for the relief of its citizens who come to grief abroad, but in spite of this fact an American who is really in need of help seldom applies in vain to a consulate which floats the Stars and Stripes.

Twelve years in the foreign service have acquainted Mr. Bowen thoroughly with the work of the nation's representatives abroad. He served as consul general at Barcelona, Spain, until the war between that country and the United States. He was then made minister to Persia, and left that post to become minister to Venezuela.

In illustration of the varied experiences which fall to the lot of a consul at a remote post, Mr. Bowen told of how he cared for a young American woman who was stricken with smallpox in Spain, after she had been deserted by a worthless husband. This happened at Barcelona. The young woman came to the consulate. Everything seemed to an American to be done backward. Persians hang their coats up wrong side out. They tie their horses by means of a chain fastened to the hind foot.

"The religion of Persia and all the customs are just what they were 2,000 years ago. It is almost impossible for new ideas to invade the land. Everything seems to an American to be done backward. Persians hang their coats up wrong side out. They tie their horses by means of a chain fastened to the hind foot."

NO TITLE TO SUBMERGED LAND AT MISSION ROCKS

Case Decided Against the United States.

California's famous "Mission Rock" case was decided in the Supreme Court of the United States yesterday. The Mission Rocks proper are two barren islands projecting from the waters of San Francisco Bay—one containing 814 acres and the other 6.01 acre. President McKinley set them aside for naval purposes.

In 1870 the California Legislature conveyed the submerged lands surrounding the islands, and the Mission Rock Company later came into possession, building up the submerged lands, creating more than fourteen acres, and placing many improvements thereon.

The United States brought suit for the Mission Rocks, as well as the submerged lands, and won its case in the United States circuit court. The United States circuit court of appeals modified the decision, and gave the islands to the United States, but held that it had no title to the submerged lands.

This decision was sustained in the Supreme Court of the United States today, its decision holding that when California became a State it obtained a title to the submerged lands, that it had a right to convey them and did so convey them; that it was the State's policy to grant submerged lands free from encumbrances; and that it was not the purpose of the President to reserve more than the islands themselves for naval purposes.

The lands in question are valued at about $355,000.

NO GROUND FOR EXTRA PAY FOR AUGUSTUS TANEY

J. T. Petty, the Auditor, has reported to the District Commissioners that Augustus Taney has no ground for extra compensation for working overtime as watchman or keeper at the Washington Asylum. An application for allowance of such remuneration was recently made through P. A. Bowen, Jr., attorney for Mr. Taney.
